Hi Jodie,

I appreciate your comments regarding internal code references on p. 14 of the attachment. After talking with other Department rule drafters however I believe the public, particularly the regulated community, is better served by providing a rule that is clear because it is consistent with the rest of NR 211 and with other state codes – at least with respect to internal code referencing.

Sincerely,

Bob

Hi Bob,

Thank you for the response. We have discussed your responses to our comments. We think the "(am)" format is rather awkward, but we will defer to the Wisconsin convention on this point.

However, we still believe that the "par. (b)" and "par. (am)" references are confusing. This document is intended for the public and should provide clear guidance on what particular (b) and (am) is intended. Those considerations should outweigh strict adherence to the state drafting procedures, and there is otherwise no consequence to putting the full reference other than a few extra characters. We recommend, for the sake of clarity, that the full rule citation be used; NR211.235(1)(b) instead of "par. (b)" [comment JO2 in the attachment] and NR211.235(1)(am)(intro) instead "par. (am)" [comment JO5 in the attachment].

Thank you,

Jodie Opie

Hi Bob,

We have a couple more simple comments on the general pretreatment rules that will help improve the clarity and a question on the use of the paragraph (am) at NR 211.235(1)(am)(intro). The comments and question are all located on page 14 of the attachment and involve NR 211.235(1)(am)(intro) and NR 211.235(1)(b).

Please see the attachment where I have added them in the document.

If you have questions please contact me. Thanks,

Quintin,

As requested in your June 12 email below I've attached a revised version of NR 211 (General Pretreatment Requirements) which is scheduled to go before the DNR Board on Aug. 13 for adoption. I've highlighted in green, new language which is different from the proposed rule which was public noticed Jan. 24, 2013 and for which you provided comments to the Dept. in your letter dated April 2, 2013. In addition to the highlighted changes, two items were reinstated in the attached revision which were repealed in the Jan. 24 version: NR 211.03(2e) – the definition for centralized waste treater and NR 211.16 – additional requirements for centralized waste treaters.

Please contact me if you have any questions or comments.

Steve,

The reasons for the extended lag are the 6-month Legislative Review period following Board adoption ((see Phase IV in the attached link (NOTE: the number to the right of each box is the approximate number of months elapsed since rule initiation)) and the 3-month Rule Promulgation period (see Phase V) following Legislative Review.

<http://intranet.dnr.state.wi.us/int/nrboard/documents/Admin-rule-flow-chart.ppt>

Also, since Governor approval is not needed (initiation of this rule pre-dates that requirement) the rule's approximate publication/effective date should be 8.5 months after Board adoption, not 9 – making publication closer to May 1, 2014.

Why the extended lag between August 2013 and June 2014? The Secretary's May 2012 letter to EPA projected that the draft final rule would be submitted to the Legislature by July 2013.

Hi Quintin,

Rule Package #2 (Pretreatment) was scheduled to go before the WDNR Board on June 25 requesting the Board's adoption. The draft rule needs further revision however so the rule will go before the Board at its August 13 meeting instead. The revised estimate for publication of this rule is June 1, 2014. When the rule revisions for the August Board meeting are complete I will email a copy of them to you.

Hello Quintin,

I took a second look at your email below, particularly the schedule for Rule Package #2, and noticed that it differs from that in the attached May 18, 2012, Cathy Stepp letter. Thought I should send this as it shows RP#2 is still on track.

Subject: Wisconsin LAR Update

Hello Tom,

This is a follow-up on the May 18, 2012 letter from Cathy Stepp, Secretary, State of Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources to Susan Hedman, Region V Administrator regarding Rule Making Schedule for EPA's Permitting for Environmental Results Initiative. I would like a current update on the following specific items of concern.

1. Current status of Rule Package 2-Pretreatment (Federal issue # 16) and please identify a contact person for this issue.
2. Current status of Statutory changes regarding Storm water-WisDot permitting exemption (Federal issue #23 & 26 (DOT)) and Statutory changes regarding Storm Water –Commercial building regulation (Federal issue # 24 (DSPA)).

The Cathy Stepp letter identified the following schedule:

Rule Package 2

Rule Draft completed –December 2011

NRB Authorization for Hearing –January, 2012

EIA Process Completed –May, 2012

NRB Adoption-October, 2012

Submit Rule for Legislation Review-January, 2013

Effective-After completion of Legislative Review

Statutory changes for Storm water-WisDot permitting exemption:

Administrative and transitional measures -March, 2012

Submit Legislative change recommendations –January, 2013

Statutory changes regarding Storm Water –Commercial building regulation:

DNR will continue permitting

Submit Legislative change recommendations-January, 2013.

Please provide update on the above ASAP. If you have any questions, I can be reached at (312) 886-0135.
